SATURDAY EVENING, JANUARY 19.

CHANCELLOR KENT'S START IN LIFE.—It was soon after his admission to the bar the chancellor said he had cast about, as young lawyers generally do, to determine where he should settle, and concluded to open an office in his native county of Putnam, and there accordingly in one of the small villages he hired rooms and put out his sign. Whether this was the village of his birth I do not recollect. Business, however, did not crowd the office of the young lawyer. But after a time several men of the village came one evening into his office.

Then, said the chancellor, (rubbing his hands with a slight chuckle of delight as he recalled the incident) I thought there was important business to come—when, after some conversation on common topics, the self-constituted chairman or spokesman, said:—"Mr. Kent, we have been talking over the subject of your settlement with us and have concluded that we do not want any lawyers here," (and then added by the way of salve; "if we were to have one, we would rather have you than any one else.")

The prospects of success, the chancellor said, did not appear very promising, and he soon after removed to Poughkeepsie. There he subsequently formed a partnership with Gilbert Livingston, a prominent and successful lawyer of that place. "Business was good, and whenever we received money we divided," said the chancellor, "and very soon" clapping his hands, "I had money in both pockets."

It was while residing in Poughkeepsie that Chancellor Kent was married to Elizabeth Bailey, a member of a prominent family in Putnam county, and of whom he spoke affectionately and familiarly as his wife Betsy. The chancellor said that his wedding tour was very short, and he was but a few days absent from his office. Some of his young friends and companions laughed at the shortness of his absence, "but I told them," said the chancellor, "that I was starting in life and had my way to make, and could not afford to do otherwise; and," he added, "I think if some of those young men had done likewise and devoted less time and expense to wedding tours and more time to their business it would have been better for them."

TOO MUCH JOKING.—Slang is not wit. Neither is the misspelling of words humor. And we may go even further, and say that the prevalent disposition to present everything serious as well as trifling, in a ridiculous light, is also bad as a matter of morals. Yet there are many people whose sole effort in writing and in conversation appears to be in the direction of what they consider "smartness." That constant trifling with the sad realities of human life; with the serious work of human kind; with the events of the day, and with the character of the living and with the memory of the dead, is lowering the tone, not only of literature, but of morals. The world itself is not a huge joke, however. Some people may so affect to consider it.

A GOOD ENGLISH EDUCATION.—To read the English language well, said Edward Everett, to write with dispatch a neat, legible hand, and to be master of the first four rules in arithmetic so as to dispose of at once, with accuracy, every question of figures which comes up in practice—I call this a good education. And if you add the ability to write pure, grammatical English, I regard it an excellent education. These are the tools. You can do much with them, but you are helpless without them. They are the foundation, and unless you begin with these, all your flashy attainments, a little geology and otherologies and sophisms, are ostentatious rubbish.

Always acknowledge all courtesies in a kindly spirit.

LEGAL NOTICES. NOTICE OF SEIZURE. TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: Please take notice that, as Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue 6th District of Virginia, I have this day seized the following described property, in possession of Joseph G. Lash, as his private manufactory, located on the corner of King and Royal streets, Alexandria, Va., viz: 615 lbs leaf tobacco, 20,300 cigars, 25 cigar boxes, 1 cigar press and 44 cigar moulds. The aforesaid property was seized for violation of Internal Revenue laws. All persons claiming the above described property, or any part thereof, are notified to make and file their claim to the same with me within 30
